U.S. ARMY ACQUISITION, LOGISTICS AND TECHNOLOGY

WHAT IS THE ASC?

The U.S. Army Acquisition Support Center (ASC) is a field-operating agency directly supporting the Army Acquisition Executive/Assistant Secretary of the Army for Acquisition, Logistics and Technology (AL&T) and the Director of Acquisition Career Management. ASC provides:

- Oversight for the Army Acquisition Corps (AAC) and the AL&T Workforce by ensuring the professional development of the entire workforce as mandated in the Defense Acquisition Workforce Improvement Act of 1990.
- Major command-level support to program executive offices in the areas of resource management, human resources management and force structure.
- Policy, guidance, support and services regarding acquisition issues and initiatives.
- Proponency functions that include doctrine, training, education, force design, policy and programs.

 LOGISTICS & TECHNOLOGY

2004

WHAT IS THE AAC?

The U.S. Army Acquisition Corps (AAC) is a uniformed and civilian workforce dedicated to researching, managing, developing, testing, evaluating, contracting, fielding and sustaining the Army's warfighting systems and equipment to support the Army's transformation from the Current to Future Force.

As the Army adapts to meet the omnipresent threats of global terrorism, urban warfare and an increasingly complex battlefield, AAC professionals are harnessing tomorrow's technological advances today to provide world-class, network-centric systems that support a campaign-quality Army with a Joint and Expeditionary mindset.

The AAC is the premier integrator and developer of strategically responsive, highly supportable warfighting, intelligence and communications systems that provide combatant commanders and their Soldiers unprecedented capabilities to fight with greater lethality, survivability and sustainability — regardless of where the battlefield or mission takes them.
